The Map to Chocolate

*Five maps to the best chocolate restaurants in New York City
from Union Square*

November Edition

Letter from the editor:

Map to Chocolate is a fun, collaborative magazine for people spending their Saturday afternoon relaxing in Union Square. When people read Map to Chocolate they will see vibrant, delicious images of chocolate desserts. Directions will be given on how to get to these magnificent sweets. Once they've relished in the chocolate goodness, they will find a checklist at the end to ensure they acquired full enjoyment.

Map to Chocolate presents five restaurants in New York City: Max Brenner's, Serendipity, Dylan's Candy Bar, The Sugar Factory, and Bread's Bakery. Each page exhibiting the restaurants are styled with images of what the specific restaurant is known for. The pages will give thorough directions on how to get to each restaurant from Union Square using the subway, walking, and driving. The magazine also has lists of other chocolate deserts available at these restaurants.

Map to Chocolate is meant to give people in New York, native or tourist a fun afternoon of adventure, and sweet encounters. The idea is to get a crowd of people who are constantly working, thinking, and rushing to part take in a mindless activity. It encourages readers to be adventurous, enjoy life, and eat chocolate.
